Activity: Anthropological Perspectives Exploration

Objective:

To understand and apply the concepts of the anthropological perspective of the self and the subdisciplines of anthropology.

Instructions:

1. Group Formation: Divide the class into four groups, each representing one of the four subdisciplines of anthropology (Cultural, Archaeological, Biological, Linguistic).
2. Research and Presentation: Each group will:
 - Research their assigned subdiscipline.
 - Find a case study or example that highlights the importance and application of their subdiscipline in understanding human behavior and culture.
 - Prepare a 10-minute presentation to share their findings with the class.
3. Discussion: After all presentations, engage in a class discussion on how each subdiscipline contributes to a holistic understanding of the self and human culture. Discuss any overlaps or unique contributions of each field.
