Activity: Understanding the Political Self

Objective: To help students understand the concept of the political self and its influences through socialization, and the importance of political participation.

Instructions:

1. Reading Comprehension: Read the provided text on "The Political Self."
2. Reflection Essay: Write a short essay (300-500 words) on how the political self is shaped by various factors in society such as family, school, church, peers, and mass media. Provide personal examples or observations if possible.
3. Group Discussion: Form groups of 4-5 members and discuss the following questions:
  - How does political socialization occur in your family?
  - What role does the school play in shaping your political identity?
  - Can you identify any symbols or meanings communicated by peers that influence your political attitudes?
  - How does mass media shape your understanding of politics?
4. Presentation: Each group will present their discussion points and reflections to the class.
